The Aboriginal Summer Program for Youth in Recreation, offered by the Saskatchewan Parks and Recreation Association (SPRA), works in partnership with Aboriginal and Métis communities to teach youth, high school to post secondary, quality recreation leadership and programming skills which encourage participants to pursue a career in the recreation field. The program is focused on a three-day outdoor learning experience which is facilitated by certified instructors.

- Assists First Nation, Métis communities in sustaining their values and traditions through culturally appropriate programs
- Aboriginal youth acquire the skills necessary to provide recreation programming in their communities
- Youth receive training in Play Leadership, Introduction to coaching, Teamwork/Leadership and CPR/First Aid and Drowning Prevention
